BOSTWICK TO FIGHT RULING

Ousted Probate Judge to Carry Verdict to Supreme Court, He Says.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—Ordered removed from the bench on charge of illegally using his office to regain a diamond ring he presented to Mrs. Opal Eversole, Probate Judge Homer Z. Bostwick today planned to fight the verdict in the court of appeals.

Bostwick's ouster was ordered yesterday by three visiting judges—Walter D. Jones of Miami-co, James C. Ogilvie of Carroll-co and William P. Vaughn of Morrow-co—after hearing charges brought by more than 1400 Columbus voters.

The three judges announced they had "practically no difficulty in arriving at a common conclusion." Their verdict was in itself a denial of the charge by Bostwick's attorneys that Bostwick's attackers had failed definitely to link him with threats of perjury charges made against Mrs. Eversole.

Judge Bostwick, it was charged, threatened Mrs. Eversole, who was Mrs. Walker when she met her, with perjury unless she returned a valuable diamond. The threat was declared to have been made by an assistant prosecutor.

The basis for the threat, it was said in court, was the fact that Mrs. Walker, when she became Mrs. Eversole, failed to reveal that she had already been married twice before.

The technical charge for which the judge was removed was misconduct in office. The office will be filled by Governor George White.

WEATHER IS GOOD

To Remain In Air Two Hours In Proof Test

AKRON, O., Sept. 23.—The United States airship Akron, the navy's new queen of the skies, will make her maiden flight this afternoon. The giant ship was expected to take the air shortly after 3 p. m.

Definite announcement that the first test flight of the world's largest dirigible would be made today came from Navy and Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation officials this morning after weather experts had poured over reports all night and found conditions satisfactory for the trip.

Rough atmospheric conditions on the ground and aloft which forced postponement of the flight on Monday had abated today, officials said.

The first flight will be about two hours duration and will be merely to prove that the dirigible will fly.

Another test flight will be held later to test every part of the dirigible ship before she is formally accepted by the navy and added to the American fleet.

The huge aircock teemed with activity this morning as bluejackets and Goodyear-Zeppelin workmen rushed to complete a myriad of minor last-minute details for the flights.

NO VOTE IS TAKEN ON MOVE

Leaders Claim Legalization of Beer Would Aid Nation Employment

ASK POSTS TO HELP Cheers Resound as Report Is Read Today

PORTLAND IN 1932

DETROIT, Sept. 23.—Portland, Oregon, today was chosen as the 1932 convention city of the American Legion at the Legion's annual meeting here.

DETROIT, Sept. 23.—Modification of the Volstead act to legalize the sale and manufacture of real beer within the limitation of the constitution was proposed to the American Legion convention today by its national employment commission.

The commission declared legalized beer would put thousands of thousands of unemployed back to work. The commission was laid before the convention by Howard M. Savage, former national commander and the committee's chairman.

The declaration in favor of legalization was given a tumultuous reception by the veterans who cheered and applauded. Savage made the suggestion to amend the constitution, which was a formal report on unemployment relief solely to relieve unemployment.

The commission in its informal report recommended that the legion's 1,000 local posts devote their activities to finding jobs and to keeping the unemployed from migrating. It also endorsed a petition on immigration and a campaign to stir federal, state and municipal governments into initiating new public work programs.

The committee adopted the main report by an unanimous vote. There was no opportunity for a vote on the beer issue as the committee had merely filed a recommendation.

LEGION ECHOES

By FLOYD GIBSONS
Journalist and Radio Reporter

(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.)

DETROIT, Sept. 23.—Hello everybody. Today is a big day for the American Legionnaires in convention here. Parading is over. Now it's voting. They are under orders to bring home the bacon on one or more issues. Like good soldiers they have started to carry out orders. They have put away their torpedoes, gas and red fire and there's more jockeying and electioneering than there was band concerts a few days ago.

Telegraph wires have been striding with orders not to go back on any instructions. Many of the boys have been going around with long faces because of these orders. But they have bucked up again and are ready to tackle any proposition whether it looks like a sure thing or a sure loser. Orders to stick by, or oppose the bonus and prohibition measures in the legion program have been especially troublesome. Then when open debate on both subjects was granted by Commander O'Neil there was a sigh of relief. It gave delegates a chance to go on record, win or lose.

When a home town post ordered its delegation to bring back the convention for next year it was a different matter. It was either convention or no convention. No going on record. And it was the same with delegations sent here to have a favorite son elected national commander.

There were many worried legionnaires over such orders. The best finally narrowed down to two candidates for commander and their backers refused to quit. They're still running. There's a big day lay of Georgia, John A. Rhea of Ohio, Ray Martin of Iowa, Ernest O'Neil of Kentucky, Louis Johnson of West Virginia, Harry L. Stephens of North Carolina, Rose W. Means of Colorado, and Wayne C. H. Smith of New York.

MARIETTA, O., Sept. 23.—Lancaster was selected today by the Ohio Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias as its meeting place in 1932.

charge of T. O. Gilliland, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will begin at 2 p. m. Two speakers will be obtained, the school band and the legion drum corps will furnish music, according to present plans, and the afternoon will be given over to dedication of trees to the memory of George Washington.

SEEK HERBERT
An effort will be made by Ed. C. Ebert, American Legion post commander, to obtain the services of Paul M. Herbert, Columbus, state legion commander, as the principal speaker for the occasion. Prof. W. M. Reid, local authority on trees, will also be asked to give a short talk. It is planned to have the several Boy Scout troops on hand as well as every civic and patriotic organization in the city.

The observation of the Washington bi-centennial here was instigated by the Daughters of the American Revolution who will provide three trees, all from the famous Logan Elm. George Florence, Jackson-twp, who has charge of Logan Elm Park, has consented that trees may be taken from the Logan Elm for this purpose. The D. A. R. plans to try to obtain three elms to be placed by J. Wallace Crist, city safety director, according to a plan he has had drawn of plans for beautifying the hospital grounds.

Other organizations which have promised to try to obtain a tree for this event are: Rotary Club, through Frank A. Lynch; Kiwanis Club, through E. I. Gephart; Daughters of Union Veterans, through Mrs. L. E. Miller; Business and Professional Women, through Mrs. Harp Van Riper; the Chamber of Commerce, through T. O. Gilliland; the American Legion Auxiliary, through Mrs. J. J. Rooney; the Monday Club, through Mrs. R. R. Bales; the American Legion, through E. C. Ebert, and the Sons of Veterans, through L. E. Miller.

These persons are all to consult Mr. Crist concerning what kind of tree to obtain and what size it should be. Mr. Crist will be in charge of placing the trees at any spot on the hospital grounds which he sees fit. He has agreed to take care of the planting, too.

TO MEET AGAIN
A final meeting of the group in charge of the tree planting will be held Oct. 23 when final arrangements and details will be made.

85 MEXICANS ARE HANGED

Marching Villagers Who Killed Attacker of Girl Slain By State Troops.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 23.—The wholesale hanging of eighty-five residents of the town of Villavieja in the state of Tlaxcala by a punitive military expedition dispatched by Governor Tomas Garrido was revealed in messages received here today.

The group were put to death because they had lynched Lieutenant Luis Chables, mayor of the town, following the death of a young girl he was alleged to have attacked and kidnapped.

The people fled to the mountains in panic when the troops arrived, but the soldiers gave pursuit. For six days the townspeople held out in a makeshift "garrison" high in the mountains. The siege finally ended when their scanty supplies of food ran out.

Before they handed themselves over to the troops, however, the villagers extracted promises of safe conduct to their homes.

Under heavy guard, the bedraggled, half-starved townfolk were led back to Villavieja by way of the Camino Paraiso (paradise road). Halfway back to the town, the column stopped and under orders from the commanding officer, the riflemen seized and bound eighty-five of the helpless emaciated crowd.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The stock market today, in a steadily rising tide of prices took what is characterized by financial experts as the first long step out of a depression that has lasted eighteen months.

Within twenty minutes after the opening of the stock exchange this morning, leading stocks had jumped from two to five points above yesterday's closing prices. United States steel and Bethlehem steel in the face of the ten per cent cut effective October 1 which was announced yesterday jumped two points in what looked like a steady advance that might go to five points at closing.

Leading rails, which dropped as much as eight points on the impact of the news of Great Britain's suspension of gold payments Monday, jumped on an average of five points over yesterday's closing prices.

AKRON TAKES AIR AT 3 P.M. REPORT SAYS

Giant Dirigible Will Make Maiden Flight This Afternoon, Officials Say

WEATHER IS GOOD
To Remain In Air Two Hours In Proof Test

AKRON, O., Sept. 23.—The United States airship Akron, the navy's new queen of the skies, will make her maiden flight this afternoon. The giant ship was expected to take the air shortly after 3 p. m.

Definite announcement that the first test flight of the world's largest dirigible would be made today came from Navy and Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation officials this morning after weather experts had poured over reports all night and found conditions satisfactory for the trip.

Rough atmospheric conditions on the ground and aloft which forced postponement of the flight on Monday had abated today, officials said.

The first flight will be about two hours duration and will be merely to prove that the dirigible will fly. Other test flights will be held soon to test every part of the giant ship before she is formally accepted by the navy and added to the American fleet.

The huge airdock teemed with activity this morning as bluejackets and Goodyear-Zeppelin workmen rushed to complete a myriad of minor last-minute details for the flights.

MINERS FIGHT NON-STRIKERS

Athens coal fields Scene of Disorder; Superintendent Is Threatened.

ATHENS, O., Sept. 23.—Disorder broke out suddenly in the Hocking Valley coal mine district today when a crowd of 200 strikers stormed a road near No. 6 mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Co., and attempted to prevent non-strikers from going to work.

Robert Marshall, one of the miners, was seriously cut over the right eye when he was struck by flying glass when strikers turned rocks through an automobile in which he was riding, according to authorities.

Two other miners were stopped by the strikers. Badly frightened, they abandoned their car and fled.

Former Sheriff Peter McKinley, general superintendent, was threatened by the crowd, but was not touched, Sheriff Wayne Wingett said.

HOPE IS RETAINED FOR LOST AIRMEN

LONDON, Sept. 23.—A faint spark of hope that Parker D. Cranner and Oliver Facquette, ocean fliers lost on the last lap of a flight from the United States to Europe across Arctic waters, may be alive was revived today when the American embassy telegraphed the town Provost of Kirkwall, Orkney islands, requesting all fishing vessels to keep a sharp watch for the airmen.

First indication that American authorities here believed there was a possibility the fliers might still be alive despite the finding of their wrecked seaplane at sea came last night when the British broadcasting company sent out a nationwide appeal at the request of the embassy.

PREDICT MORE RAIN IS NEAR

Rain Today Thought First of Series of Autumn Showers; Relief Is Seen.

Probably bringing Ohio's untimely heat wave to an end, a driving rain struck this section of the state today.

Expressing the belief that the heat wave at least was definitely broken, weather observers said today's downpour, which followed showers yesterday, was perhaps the signal for the beginning of autumn rains.

Although Monday, Sept. 21, marked the beginning of autumn, hot weather continued in central Ohio yesterday, despite a hard shower the previous night, in certain localities.

Rain and cloudy weather were to continue all day, with showers tomorrow again, it was predicted.

Leaders Claim Legalization of Beer Would Aid Nation Employment

ASK POSTS TO HELP
Cheers Resound as Report Is Read Today

PORTLAND IN 1932
DETROIT, Sept. 23.—Portland, Oregon, today was chosen as the 1932 convention city of the American Legion at the Legion's annual meeting here.

DETROIT, Sept. 23.—Modification of the Volstead act to legalize the sale and manufacture of real beer within the limitation of the constitution was proposed to the American Legion convention today by its national employment commission.

The commission declared legalized beer would put hundreds of thousands of unemployed back to work. The commendation was laid before the convention by Howard M. Savage, former national commander and the committee's chairman.

The declaration in favor of legalized beer was given a tumultuous reception by the veterans who cheered and applauded. Savage made the suggestion in behalf of the committee after giving its formal report on unemployment relief solely to relieve unemployment.

The commission in its informal report recommended that the legion's 1,000 local posts devote their activities to finding jobs and to keeping the unemployed from migrating. It also endorsed a holiday on immigration and a campaign to stir federal, state and municipal governments into initiating new public work programs.

The committee adopted the main report by an unanimous vote. There was no opportunity for a vote on the beer issue as the committee had merely filed a recommendation.

LEGION ECHOES

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Journalist and Radio Reporter

(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.)
DETROIT, Sept. 23.—Hello everybody. Today is a big day for the American Legionnaires in convention here. Parading is over. Now it's voting. They are under orders to bring home the bacon on one or more issues. Like good soldiers they have started to carry out orders. They have put away their torpedoes and red fire and there's more jockeying and electioneering than there were band concerts a few days ago.

Telegraph wires have been sizzling with orders not to go back on any instructions. Many of the boys have been going around with long faces because of these orders. But they have bucked up again and are ready to tackle any proposition whether it looks like a sure thing or a sure loser. Orders to stick by, or oppose the bonus and prohibition measures in the legion program have been especially troublesome. Then when open debate on both subjects was granted by Commander O'Neil there was a sigh of relief. It gave delegates a chance to go on record, win or lose.

When a home town post ordered its delegation to bring back the convention for next year it was a different matter. It was either convention or no convention. No going on record. And it was the same with delegations sent here to have a favorite son elected national commander.

There were many worried legionnaires over such orders. The field finally narrowed down to nine candidates for commander and their backers refused to quit. They're still running. There are George W. Malone of Nevada; Edgar Dunlap of Georgia; John A. Eldon of Ohio; Ray Murphy of Iowa; Emmet O'Neil of Kentucky; Louis Johnson of West Virginia; Henry L. Stephens of North Carolina; Rice W. Means of Colorado; and Wayne C. Holsworth of New York. (Continued on Page Five.)

Good Reserves Need Of Tigers

Scrimmage and plenty of it is the program for Coach Pete Herberholz' high school Tigers this week, in preparation for the night game at Lancaster Friday. Scrimmage practices began Monday and will continue through Wednesday according to the Tiger mentor.

Blocking—which didn't look so hot last Friday—is being patched up and when Friday night rolls around the Tigers are expected to show a vast improvement in this art of the game.

Coach Herberholz' greatest difficulty is finding substitutes who can enter the game and take the place of regulars. Freddy Smith who plays a half and was injured last Friday will probably not be seen in action until the Grandview game, a week from Friday. However if his condition warrants it, possible he will attempt the get in the Lancaster game. Merle Davis is ready to fill Smith's shoes.

As yet Frank Dunlap, guard and Jack Chaffin, tackle, two of last year's letter-men, have failed to report to Coach Herberholz. "If we had these two fellows, our team would be set and we'd have some substitute material on the shelf in case of an emergency," the coach said. Herb Thomas, another member of last year's squad, has not yet reported and his presence would also make the situation look much better, the mentor stated.

With the announcement today that Circleville high school's 60-

piece band will be on hand at the game Friday, from all appearances it looks as though the contest at Lancaster will be one of the most colorful and enthusiastic games ever participated in by Circleville high school.

A large crowd is expected to attend the game. High school students may purchase tickets for the price of 25 cents from Principal E. I. Gephart and the adult's price is 50 cents. Students must purchase their tickets here in order to be eligible for the 25 cent price.

WRESTLERS MEET HERE FRIDAY EVE

Wrestling fans are sure of a treat at Everts arena Friday evening, according to an announcement by Frank Davis. Two of the best welterweights in this vicinity, Chuck Nelson, rugged Pennsylvania railroad champ, and Gypsy Joe Snyder, Columbus, will go to a finish in the final.

In the semi-final go, of one hour, one fall, Joe Lett of Columbus will meet Bull Marshall of this city. Lett says that Marshall is mighty big but is of the opinion that the bigger they are the harder they fall.

In the opener fans will see Roy Stephens of Tarrilton, a protege of Ray Carpenter, crack Lancaster grappler, stepping into the ring with Ray Dixon of London, a rough and tough grinder.

The card will begin at 8.30 p. m.

Success measured merely by money is too cheap.

Blunders need not spell defeat; only the quitters fall.

Any member of the family of Art Shaffer, Tarrilton, O., is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

Teacher Suing Society Matron for That Remuneration Says She Acted as "Moral Pilot" for $200,000,000 Heir

HUNTINGTON HARTFORD MRS. HENRIETTA HARTFORD

Claiming to have rescued Huntington Hartford, 19-year-old heir to about $200,000,000, from the clutches of a Broadway siren, Miss Mildred King, of the Boston Conservatory of Music, is suing the heir's mother, Mrs. Henrietta Hartford, for $100,000 as a remuneration for leading the young man from the primrose path. Miss King claims she was hired by Mrs. Hartford to steer her son away from questionable associates and induce him to take more interest in young people of his own social stratum and financial position. Mrs. Hartford, widow of the A. & P. chain stores magnate and prominent in Newport, R. I., society, denies alleged contract and all Newport waits forthcoming suit.

Among the things that change definitions of morality are time, place and a million dollars. There is no poison of the human trait that poisons so much and pays so little as revenge.

MUSKIES MISS STAR GRIDDERS

Bill Lang's Team to Meet Wilmington Under New Concord Lights Friday

NEW CONCORD, O., Sept. 23.—Wilmington college comes to the student stadium here Friday night for the opening football game of the season to be played under the floodlights. Muskingum will oppose the new grid foe with an eleven, six of the players being inexperienced. While the game will have no rating in the Ohio Conference the outcome will have a decided bearing on Muskingum's prospects for the season.

Five Muskie lettermen, three of them seniors, will bolster the Black and Magenta forces. Zeyher, half-back of two years, will probably be shifted to quarter and as the only veteran back will likely receive the captain assignment for the game. Forgy, tackle, and Hawthorne, guard, will be the mainstays on the line.

Two juniors, who earned their letters last year, will also be found on the line. Dorwart, under study for Polinsky last year at center, will start at that post, and Sims will take the other guard position. Just who will fill the vacant tackle breach may not be settled upon until game time. Both flanks will be manned by new players, Himes and McClain being the most likely candidates.

Starters in the backfield will not be announced until a late hour as Coach Lange has been vying two machines for his offense. Because of his kicking ability, Mariner, a new find in the senior class, may win a half assignment. Melhorn appears to have a slight edge on the full back position left vacant by the failure of Doug Russell to return. The other halfback will not likely be picked until game time.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware a substitute. 25c at all stores. ©1931, C. M. Co.

"Why
My Next Car
will be
A FORD"

When you buy a Ford there are two things you never have to worry about. One is reliability. The other is long life. Here's an interesting letter from a Ford owner in North Carolina:

"My Ford was purchased May 8, 1928, and has been run 121,767 miles. It has never stopped on the road for repairs of any kind whatever except punctures.

"The brakes were relined at 101,000 miles. My gas mileage averaged 21 miles to the gallon, and on tires, 19,000 miles per tire. I travel over all kinds of road conditions—mountainous and flat.

"I consider this a wonderful record and I assure you my next car will also be a Ford."

This is just one of many tributes to the reliability and long life of the Ford. A Ford owner in Iowa tells of driving his Ford 73,000 miles in a single year. Another writes of 120,000 miles of good service.

Think ahead when you are considering the purchase of an automobile and consider what it will be like after thousands of miles of driving. Will you still be satisfied? Will you still say "it's a great car?"

If it's a Ford, you know everything will be O. K. It will be taking you there and back in good style, just as it has always done. And you will have saved many important, worth-while dollars in cost of operation and up-keep and low yearly depreciation.

Spartans Tangle With Nevers; McClain Fired

PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 23.—Football as only post graduate grid artists of All-American caliber can play it will be the dish served at University Stadium here Wednesday evening when the Portsmouth Spartans meet the Chicago Cardinals.

Ernie Nevers, All-American full-back from Stanford University, who is playing his third season of pro football will lead Chicago's eleven in the windy city's first 1931 attempt for league honors in the Joe Carr circuit. Portsmouth Spartans have one game to their credit having defeated Brooklyn 14 to 0 in the season's opener September 13th.

The Spartans will enter the contest without the assistance of Mayes McClain 225 pound, Haskell Indian and former Iowa back who was suspended Monday by George "Potsy" Clark, Portsmouth coach. McClain has both the strength and temperament of a Jim Thorpe, according to Clark. Temperament, however being less valuable than the Indian's playing proclivities. Clark expects to maneuver a sale or trade for his protegee in the interest of team play.

Nevers will have Willis Glasgow, All-American at Iowa in 1929 and Spartan backfield ace in 1930 as one of his running mates. Other backfield Red Birds whom Cardinal Coach LeRoy Andrew will likely start Wednesday are Walter Holmer, Northwestern; and Irwin Hill, Trinity, Texas. All have received football's Ph. D. Degree and are running, passing and kicking threats. Glasgow is exceptionally dangerous once he is through the line and has few if any equals as a quick kicker.

HAS SCHWARTZ, HOLM

Without McClain at full Coach Clark has "Tony" Holm, All-American for Alabama and Elmer Schwartz, Oregon State to handle the line battering assignments. Schwartz's plunges netted the Spartans their first touchdown, against Brooklyn when the locals stopped "Stumpy" Thomas's eleven. Lumpkin of Georgia Teck; Presnell, Nebraska All-American who captained the team which beat Rockne's Four Horsemen and Dexter Shelley, captain of Texas University in 1930 will handle Clark's half-back assignments. Presnell will call signals.

The Spartans line is in excellent shape, Eodenger of Tulane reporting the only injury of the season to date, a sprained shoulder which will not likely keep him out of the line-up. Mitchell and Erbang will start at the wings. Douds and Christianson at Tackles, Randolph center, and Armstrong and Wager guards.

"Doc" David Jones, president and owner of the Red Birds and Andrews who coached Friedman and his new York Giants before coming to Chicago have signed one of the heaviest lines in the league. Kassell, All-American from Illinois and Kogge from Iowa are first choice wing men. Erickson of Northwestern will start at center. Tinsley of Louisiana and Cobb of Dakota will open at the tackles and Diehl of Idaho and Kiesley of St. Thomas will go in at the guard posts.

Good Reserves Need Of Tigers

Scrimmage and plenty of it is the program for Coach Pete Herberholz' high school Tigers this week, in preparation for the night game at Lancaster Friday. Scrimmage practices began Monday and will continue through Wednesday according to the Tiger mentor.

Blocking—which didn't look so hot last Friday—is being patched up and when Friday night rolls around the Tigers are expected to show a vast improvement in this art of the game.

Coach Herberholz' greatest difficulty is finding substitutes who can enter the game and take the place of regulars. Freddy Smith who plays a half and was injured last Friday will probably not be seen in action until the Grandview game, a week from Friday. However if his condition warrants it possible he will attempt the get in the Lancaster game. Merle Davis is ready to fill Smith's shoes.

As yet Frank Dunlap, guard and Jack Chaffin, tackle, two of last year's letter-men, have failed to report to Coach Herberholz. "If we had these two fellows, our team would be set and we'd have some substitute material on the shelf in case of an emergency," the coach said. Herb Thomas, another member of last year's squad, has not yet reported and his presence would make the situation look much better, the mentor stated.

With the announcement today that Circleville high school's 60-

piece band will be on hand at the game Friday, from all appearances it looks as though the contest at Lancaster will be one of the most colorful and enthusiastic games ever participated in by Circleville high school.

A large crowd is expected to attend the game. High school students may purchase tickets for the price of 25 cents from Principal E. I. Gephart and the adult's price is 50 cents. Students must purchase their tickets here in order to be eligible for the 25 cent price.

WRESTLERS MEET HERE FRIDAY EVE

Wrestling fans are sure of a treat at Everts arena Friday evening, according to an announcement by Frank Davis. Two of the best welterweights in this vicinity Chuck Nelson, rugged Pennsylvania railroad champ, and Gypsy Joe Snyder, Columbus, will go to a finish in the final.

In the semi-final go, of one hour, one fall, Joe Lett of Columbus will meet Bull Marshall of this city. Lett says that Marshall is mighty big but is of the opinion that the bigger they are the harder they fall.

In the opener fans will see Roy Stephens of Tarilton, a protege of Ray Carpenter, crack Lancaster grappler, stepping into the ring with Ray Dixon of London, a rough and tough grunter.

The card will begin at 8:30 p. m.

Success measured merely by money is too cheap.

Blunders need not spell defeat; only the quitters fail.

Any member of the family of Art Shaffer, Tarilton, O., is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

Young Men Saved from Sirens—Price $100,000

Teacher Suing Society Matron for That Remuneration Says She Acted as "Moral Pilot" for $200,000,000 Heir

HUNTINGTON HARTFORD

MRS. HENRIETTA HARTFORD

Claiming to have rescued Huntington Hartford, 19-year-old heir to about $200,000,000, from the clutches of a Broadway siren, Miss Mildred King, of the Boston Conservatory of Music, is suing the heir's mother, Mrs. Henrietta Hartford, for $100,000 as a remuneration for leading the young man from the primrose path. Miss King claims she was hired by Mrs. Hartford to steer her son away from questionable associates and induce him to take more interest in young people of his own social stratum and financial position. Mrs. Hartford, widow of the A. & P. chain stores magnate and prominent in Newport, R. I., society, denies alleged contract and all Newport waits forthcoming suit.

Among the things that change definitions of morality are time, place and a million dollars. There is no poison of the human heart that poisons so much and pays so little as revenge.

Spartans Tangle With Nevers; McClain Fired

PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 23.—Football as only post graduate grid artists of All-American caliber can play it will be the dish served at University Stadium here Wednesday evening when the Portsmouth Spartans meet the Chicago Cardinals.

Ernie Nevers, All-American full-back from Stanford University, who is playing his third season of pro football will lead Chicago's eleven in the windy city's first 1931 attempt for league honors in the Joe Carr circuit. Portsmouth Spartans have one game to their credit having defeated Brooklyn 14 to 0 in the season's opener September 13th.

The Spartans will enter the contest without the assistance of Maxey McClain 225 pound, Haskell Indian and former Iowa back who was suspended Monday by George "Potsy" Clark, Portsmouth coach. McClain has both the strength and temperament of a Jim Thorpe, according to Clark. Temperament, however being less valuable than the Indian's playing proclivities. Clark expects to maneuver a sale or trade for his protege in the interest of team play.

Nevers will have Willis Glasgow, All-American at Iowa in 1929 and Spartan backfield ace in 1930 as one of his running mates. Other backfield Red Birds whom Cardinal Coach LeRoy Andrew will likely start Wednesday are Walter Holmer, Northwestern; and Irwin Hill, Trinity, Texas. All have received football's Ph. D. Degree and are running, passing and kicking threats. Glasgow is exceptionally dangerous once he is through the line and has few if any equals as a quick kicker.

HAS SCHWARTZ, HOLM.
Without McClain at full Coach Clark has "Tony" Holm, All-American for Alabama and Elmer Schwartz, Oregon State to handle the line battering assignments. Schwartz's plunges netted the Spartans their first touchdown against Brooklyn when the locals stopped "Stumpy" Thompson's eleven. Lumpkin of Georgia Teck; Presnell, Nebraska All-American who captained the team which beat Rockne's Four Horsemen and Dexter Shelley, captain of Texas University in 1930 will handle Clark's half-back assignments. Presnell will call signals. The Spartan line is in excellent shape. Bodenger of Tulane reporting the only injury of the season to date, a sprained shoulder which will not likely keep him out of the line-up. Mitchell and Erbing will start at the wings; Douds and Christianson at Tackles; Randolph, center; and Armstrong and Wager guards.

"Doc" David Jones, president and owner of the Red Birds and Andrews who coached Friedman and his new York Giants before coming to Chicago have signed one of the heaviest lines in the league. Kassell, All-American from Illinois and Kogge from Iowa are first choice wing men. Erickson of Northwestern will start at center. Tinsley of Louisiana and Cobb of Dakota will open at the tackles and Diehl of Idaho and Kiesley of St. Thomas will go in at the guard posts.

MUSKIES MISS STAR GRIDDERS

Bill Lange's Team to Meet Wilmington Under New Concord Lights Friday

NEW CONCORD, O., Sept. 23.—Wilmington college comes to the student stadium here Friday night for the opening football game of the season to be played under the floodlights. Muskingum will oppose the new grid foe with an eleven, six of the players being inexperienced. While the game will have no rating in the Ohio Conference the outcome will have a decided bearing on Muskingum's prospects for the season.

Five Muskie lettermen, three of them seniors, will bolster the Black and Magenta forces. Zeyher, half-back of two years, will probably be shifted to quarter and as the only veteran back will likely receive the captain assignment for the game. Forgy, tackle, and Hawthorne, guard, will be the mainstays on the line.

Two juniors, who earned their letters last year, will also be found on the line. Dorwart, understudy for Polinsky last year at center, will start at that post, and Sims will take the other guard position. Just who will fill the vacant tackle breach may not be settled upon until game time. Both flanks will be manned by new players; Himes and McClain being the most likely candidates.

Starters in the backfield will not be announced until a late hour as Coach Lange has been visiting two machines for his offense. Because of his kicking ability, Mariner, a new find in the senior class, may win a half assignment. Melhorn appears to have a slight edge on the full back position left vacant by the failure of Doug Russell to return. The other halfback will not likely be picked until game time.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

"Why
My Next Car
will be
A FORD"

WHEN YOU buy a Ford there are two things you never have to worry about. One is reliability. The other is long life.

Here's an interesting letter from a Ford owner in North Carolina:

"My Ford was purchased May 8, 1928, and has been run 121,767 miles. It has never stopped on the road for repairs of any kind whatsoever except punctures.

"The brakes were relined at 101,000 miles. My gas mileage averaged 21 miles to the gallon, and on tires, 19,000 miles per tire. I travel over all kinds of road conditions—mountainous and flat.

"I consider this a wonderful record and I assure you my next car will also be a Ford."

This is just one of many tributes to the reliability and long life of the Ford. A Ford owner in Iowa tells of driving his Ford 73,000 miles in a single year. Another writes of 120,000 miles of good service.

Think ahead when you are considering the purchase of an automobile and consider what it will be like after thousands of miles of driving. Will you still be satisfied? Will you still say "it's a great car"?

If it's a Ford, you know everything will be O. K. It will be taking you there and back in good style, just as it has always done. And you will have saved many important, worth-while dollars in cost of operation and up-keep and low yearly depreciation.

Co-operation In "Save Surplus" Campaign Good

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—"Ohio newspaper editors and farmers are showing a commendable spirit of community service in co-operating to insure success of the movement to can surplus products to provide food for the needy this winter," said Governor George White in a statement urging an intensive drive in the remaining days of the canning season to prevent the waste of any part of the fruit and vegetable crops.

"The 'can-the-surplus' idea, promoted for several weeks by the Governor's relief committee directed by Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, has enlisted large numbers of volunteer workers throughout the state, reports to the Governor show.

"We are gratified by the enthusiastic response and in thanking those who have contributed so much I desire to ask that all possible haste and individual participation be put into the final days of the season to the end that all available surplus may be conserved and stored for winter requirements of those so unfortunate as to be without means of buying foodstuffs.

"The newspapers by contributing their space for presentation of the plan have aroused the interest of many fine volunteer organizations throughout the state. The editors, farmers and housewives have united their efforts in a program of preparedness to which other good citizens have given much in the form of canning equipment, transportation and other things needed to make the plan work.

"The community spirit they have developed reflects a concern for others and a willingness to sacrifice and share that is enheartening to those in official life who foresee an increase in responsibilities as winter approaches.

"The task has been one that could not effectively be handled by any state organization and for that reason the state relief committee appealed to the granges, farm bureaus, parent-teachers' associations, churches and like agencies to mobilize their resources and the individuals in counties, cities and towns.

"These units, co-ordinated through the help of the press, have piled up a great store of supplies that must be the first line of defense against distress.

"In a year when nature has provided bountiful crops it would be criminal to permit waste in the face of extraordinary needs that are likely to be faced during the coming winter. I am confident that if the efforts of the last few weeks are intensified in the closing days of the canning campaign there will be no preventable waste and a maximum supply of preserved fruits and vegetables will be available for distribution by relief agencies when the need becomes acute.

"The success so far achieved offers an inspiring revelation of the helpful spirit and community generosity that characterizes the people of Ohio. Rural and urban citizenship have been brought together in a laudable demonstration of genuine unselfishness."

CHURCH RALLY DAY IS HUGE SUCCESS

The observation of Rally Day in Trinity Lutheran Sunday school last Sunday was a decided success. The interest was exceedingly high and attendance was over four hundred.

While much credit is due to many of the members of the school, the plans were principally formulated and carried out by Superintendent E. E. Wolf and Rev. G. L. Troutman, who have worked untiringly for the past several weeks.

The service was opened with the rally song, "Rally, One and All." Harry Boyer, a student in the Theological department of Capital University of Columbus, then talked most interestingly on "What the Sunday School Has Done for Me."

Fifteen minutes was given to the study of the regular lesson for the day, after which the entire school assembled in the auditorium to give honor to whom honor was due. A certificate of recognition and a basket of flowers were presented to each of the following:

Oldest lady in attendance; Mrs. Christina Palm, 85 years of age. Oldest gentleman in attendance; W. C. Baum, 78 years of age.

Longest consecutive service as a teacher; Mrs. James Stout, 20 years.

Best missionary for the day; Mrs. Minnie Debolt.

Mother with greatest number of children in attendance; Mrs. Sherman Barr.

Best unbroken record of attendance; Miss Ruth Eccard, 5 years, 2 months.

Youngest pupil enrolled and in attendance; Phyllis Weller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Weller, 2 years and 5 months of age.

The primary department of the school contributed a rally song that added much zest to the occasion.

Mrs. Denny Pickens next talked on "Joys I Have Found in Sunday School Work," presenting much careful preparation and good thought.

Superintendent E. E. Wolf next read the long list of primary pupils that will receive gold medal buttons for unbroken service, providing they complete the required term of three more Sundays.

The rally was brought to a successful close by the entire school singing "Work for Christ."

Often had to lie down

"SIX years ago I took Lydia E. Plankham's Vegetable Compound for pains and cramps and it helped wonderfully.

"After my children were born, I tried to keep up, but I often had to lie down. I started taking the Vegetable Compound again to build me up.

"Since taking it, I feel fine and look well. The Vegetable Compound is a good medicine. If any woman writes to me, I will answer her." Mrs. Ina Peterson, Box 48, St. George Road, Thomaston, Maine.

The Jackson-twp school district belonging to Circleville-twp received an increase of $1.10 per thousand. The 1932 rate is $15.20 as compared to $14.10.

The majority of increases were made for school purposes and where slight decreases were noted, the fact that a small amount has been cut off the state and county fund will account for this.

Where Chinese-Japs Are at War

The latest theatre of war finds its apex at the ancient capital city of Manchuria, Mukden, which has been taken by force and is held by Japanese troops. Warfare between China and Japan in Manchuria, long a sore spot, flamed forth over dynamiting of a bridge on the Chinese Eastern Railway, an attack on Japanese railway guards, for both of which outrages Chinese soldiers are blamed, and the execution by China of a Japanese officer as a spy. In addition to the assault on Mukden, another Japanese force landed at Tientsin on the south coast of the Shantung peninsula. Photo shows Nippon troops marching into Mukden through the great gate of the city on a previous clash with China. Map depicts the area of fighting. Colonel and Mrs. Charles E. Lindbergh, in landing at Nan-king, are more than five hundred miles from the scene of military operations.

ACID stomach

EXCESS acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. It is responsible for most of the everyday ailments that people suffer; sick headache, sluggishness, nausea, biliousness, gas on the stomach, etc. The quick corrective is an alkali which will neutralize the acid. The best corrective known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Go to the drug store and get a bottle to try. Take it tonight, and follow the simple directions you find in the package. Know what it means to have a weak, alkalized system. See how much better your general health will be. How seldom you will catch cold.

Be sure that you get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia that physicians prescribe. It is sold in 25c and 50c bottles at drug stores everywhere.

To keep the teeth white and guard against acid mouth, use Phillips' Dental Magnesia; it is a superior tooth-paste.—Adv.

So it is in the manufacture of CHESTERFIELD cigarettes. Expert chemists test all the materials that are used in any way in CHESTERFIELD's manufacture, to make sure that everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is just right.

Then the shreds of cut tobacco, as you see them in your CHESTERFIELD, are again heated, cleaned and purified. From these pure tobaccos the cigarettes are made, and only the purest paper—the best that can be made—is used for CHESTERFIELD.

Cigarettes used to be made in an old-fashioned way, by hand. Now, no hand but yours touches CHESTERFIELD—another purity safeguard.

CHESTERFIELDS are made and packed in clean, sanitary factories where even the air is changed every four and one-half minutes—purity again.

ALL THIS CARE is taken to give you CHESTERFIELDS as nearly perfect as cigarettes can be made. Delivered in a moisture-proof, sealed package, they reach you just as good, just as pure as when they leave the factory. Good... they've got to be good—they're just as pure as the water you drink!

Co-operation In "Save Surplus" Campaign Good

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—"Ohio newspaper editors and farmers are showing a commendable spirit of community service in co-operating to insure success of the movement to can surplus products to provide food for the needy this winter," said Governor George White in a statement urging an intensive drive in the remaining days of the canning season to prevent the waste of any part of the fruit and vegetable crops.

The "can-the-surplus" idea, promoted for several weeks by the Governor's relief committee directed by Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, has enlisted large numbers of volunteer workers throughout the state, reports to the Governor show.

"We are gratified by the enthusiastic response and in thanking those who have contributed so much I desire to ask that all possible haste and individual participation be put into the final days of the season to the end that all available surplus may be conserved and stored for winter requirements of those so unfortunate as to be without means of buying foodstuffs.

The newspapers by contributing their space for presentation of the plan have aroused the interest of many fine volunteer organizations throughout the state. The editors, farmers and housewives have united their efforts in a program of preparedness to which other good citizens have given much in the form of canning equipment, transportation and other things needed to make the plan work.

"The community spirit they have developed reflects a concern for others and a willingness to sacrifice and share that is enheartening to those in official life who foresee an increase in responsibilities as winter approaches.

"The task has been one that could not effectively be handled by any state organization and for that reason the state relief committee appealed to the granges, farm bureaus, parent-teachers' associations, churches and like agencies to mobilize their resources and the individuals in counties, cities and towns.

"These units, co-ordinated through the help of the press, have piled up a great store of supplies that must be the first line of defense against distress.

"In a year when nature has provided bountiful crops it would be criminal to permit waste in the face of extraordinary needs that are likely to be faced during the coming winter. I am confident that if the efforts of the last few weeks are intensified in the closing days of the canning campaign there will be no preventable waste and a maximum supply of preserved fruits and vegetables will be available for distribution by relief agencies when the need becomes acute.

"The success so far achieved offers an inspiring revelation of the helpful spirit and community generosity that characterizes the people of Ohio. Rural and urban citizenship have been brought together in a laudable demonstration of genuine unselfishness."

CHURCH RALLY DAY IS HUGE SUCCESS

The observation of Rally Day in Trinity Lutheran Sunday school last Sunday was a decided success. The interest was exceedingly high and attendance was over four hundred.

While much credit is due to many of the members of the school, the plans were principally formulated and carried out by Superintendent E. E. Wolf and Rev. G. L. Troutman, who have worked untiringly for the past several weeks.

The service was opened with the rally song, "Rally, One and All." Harry Boyer, a student in the theological department of the University of Columbus, then talked most interestingly on "What the Sunday School Has Done for Me."

Fifteen minutes was given to the study of the regular lesson for the day, after which the entire school assembled in the auditorium to give honor to whom honor was due.

A certificate of recognition and a basket of flowers were presented to each of the following: Mrs. Christina Palm, 85 years of age. Oldest gentleman in attendance; W. C. Baum, 78 years of age. Longest consecutive service as a teacher; Mrs. James Stout, 20 years.

Best missionary for the day; Mrs. Minnie Debolt.

Mother with greatest number of children in attendance; Mrs. Sherman Barr.

Best unbroken record of attendance; Miss Ruth Eccard, 5 years, 2 months.

Youngest pupil enrolled and in attendance; Phyllis Weller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Weller, 2 years and 5 months of age.

The primary department of the school contributed a rally song that added much zest to the occasion.

Mrs. Denny Pickens next talked on "Joys I Have Found in Sunday School Work," presenting much careful preparation and good thought.

Superintendent E. E. Wolf next read the long list of primary pupils that will receive gold medal buttons for unbroken service, providing they complete the required term of three more Sundays.

The rally was brought to a successful close by the entire school singing "Work for Christ."

Often had to lie down

"SIX years ago I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and cramps and it helped wonderfully.

"After my children were born, I tried to keep up, but I often had to lie down. I started taking the Vegetable Compound again to build me up.

"Since taking it, I feel fine and look well. The Vegetable Compound is a good medicine. If any woman writes to me, I will answer her." Mrs. Ina Peterson, Box 48, St. George Road, Thomaston, Maine.

The majority of increases were made for school purposes and where slight decreases were noted, the fact that a small amount has been cut off the state and county fund will account for this.

Exploring South America

DARKEST South America is now coming in for some of the glory of exploration. The successful quest of the source of the Orinoco by the Dickey expedition has done more to arouse world interest in South American exploration than any other single event.

Why is it that "Darkest Africa" has been getting all the publicity and attention for 60 years while South America with even more "impenetrable" jungles and more "lost" country went begging for explorers and popular interest? Africa's big game is probably the principal reason. Other reasons were that exploring Africa became a fad after the Stanley-Livingstone adventure and of late has become safe enough to be fashionable. Africa and Teddy Roosevelt used each other for publicity purposes.

Thousands of miles of territory never seen by white men beckon from South America to those who hear the call to the explorer: "Something lost behind the ranges, lost and waiting for you. Go! It is the great exploring ground of today and tomorrow."

There are the Amazon headwaters, 4,000 miles from the Atlantic and 1,000 miles from the Pacific. Doctor Dickey followed the Orinoco, 1,750 miles into "Darkest South America." Tribes never before seen the white man. Strange beasts and vegetation and unknown mountains, valleys and "lost" cities are a big order for the discovery boys.

Now that South American exploration has begun in earnest one is tempted to speculate on possibilities for colonization and development. Will the white man make as slow progress there as he has made in Africa?

Controlled Weather

SUMMER tourist traffic was driven to the automobile, bus and ship by the hot, dirty and drafty railroad coach. Not even the Pullman and parlor car are havens for the traveler in the heat of summer.

Air-conditioned cars are the railroads' bid for some of this lost hot-weather business. Leading railroad systems are experimenting with a new development in Pullman cars in which artificially tempered and filtered air is substituted for the open window. It is an appealing picture, one that should lure many seasoned travelers away from the motor cars when the journey is long.

Air conditioning is as certain of universal adaptation as television. Air-conditioned Pullman and stores are recent developments, while the air-conditioned home, office, hotel and factory are not far off.

It has not been many years since the central heating plant (now universal here) was a novelty and luxury afforded by few homes. It will not be many years before the home without conditioned air will be as obsolete as a home without central heat. And why should a modern home in modern America be only as comfortable as the weather?

Our descendants will pity us for our dependence on the open and closed window as much as we pity our ancestors for their dependence on the old oaken bucket.

Contract Confusion

FOOTBALL is not the only amateur game that has rules which need revising and codifying every year. There is that domestic pastime of contract bridge, needless supervision, regulation and codification by the recognized authorities.

Four hundred bridge teachers have been in convention in New York, bending their brows to the task of devising an "official" system of bidding for contract bridge. The annual conferences of football coaches and officials are not nearly so solemn, so strained, nor so arbitrary in their rulings as this session of the experts of the deck and deal.

Everybody who has sat in a game of contract bridge or watched the play from the sidelines will agree with the authorities that the game ought to be brought down to common sense. Where two or more players are learned in the rules, it is almost impossible to conduct an evening of progressive contract without controversy because no two acknowledge the same rules and still spoil the game.

Two major rules spoil the game. One is the trouble with contract bridge. One man's signal is another's confusion. As things stand, a conference on rules must precede every game if the evening is not to be spent arguing about rules instead of playing cards.

Peace on earth along the bridge, and peace on the ruling system.

Geraldine Foster, pretty young clerk in the office of Dr. Humphrey Maskell disappeared on Saturday. Three days later her roommate, Betty Canfield, notified Police Commissioner Thatcher. Harry Armstrong, the missing girl's fiancé, had not heard from her since Friday. Dr. Maskell says he returned to his office Saturday afternoon to find Geraldine gone. At the Foster apartment, Betty Canfield told Dr. Maskell that she had quarreled with her roommate. The Commissioner finds an old-fashioned key in the pocket of Geraldine's coat and part of a black and white note, presumably in her handwriting, in the desk. Different ink than that in the apartment was used. It is learned that Betty quarreled with Geraldine, and that she was once engaged to Geraldine's brother, Bruce. Entering Dr. Maskell's home, Colt meets Maskell's chauffeur, muttering, "Get me to talk? Never. But Geraldine was good to me. The doctor says there was a strange woman waiting outside his door when he returned Saturday. After looking around his office, she rushed out crying it was too late. Colt finds a coat and purse which the doctor readily admits Geraldine wore the day she disappeared. Maskell claims he quarreled with her because she had broken her engagement. Colt calls on Mrs. Morgan, Maskell's neighbor, who corroborates the doctor's statement that her daughter, Doris, had distributed gifts with him. Two women were leaving the doctor's office, carrying two bottles similar to that found in Maskell's office. Dr. Maskell leaves town.

CHAPTER X
JUST then, Captain Henry came in, saluted, and announced that Sergeant Burke wanted to talk to the Commissioner.

Burke came into the office, his hat in his hand. The detective's face was red and his eyes were rolling.

"I have the honor to report that I have been through all the papers, Mr. Burke, and the missing girl, 'Geraldine,' is not here," he said.

"But I found these instead. They are pieces of a note written by the Foster girl—but they don't belong to the piece you showed me."

Hastily, Thatcher Colt fitted the pieces together and read the letter aloud:

"Dear Harry,—

After what has happened, I can never marry you. This is the end of it. You could not love me and take the position you do. I love you—the you I knew before—but I shall never see you again."

For a moment, there was a complete silence in the Commissioner's office. At length it was broken by Captain Laird.

"Who is Harry?" he asked.

"Harry Armstrong, the boy who was to marry, of course. This is odd! Did she tear up two letters—where in heaven's name are the missing pieces of the other one?"

Burke held up his right hand as if taking the oath and avouched that he had personally examined every scrap.

Scrap of Paper

"What's this, Burke? You just told me you couldn't find them."

"I didn't," pleaded the detective.

"But I found these instead. They are pieces of a note written by the Foster girl—but they don't belong to the piece you showed me."

Hastily, Thatcher Colt fitted the pieces together and read the letter aloud:

"Dear Harry,—

After what has happened, I can never marry you. This is the end of it. You could not love me and take the position you do. I love you—the you I knew before—but I shall never see you again."

For a moment, there was a complete silence in the Commissioner's office. At length it was broken by Captain Laird.

"Who is Harry?" he asked.

"Harry Armstrong, the boy who was to marry, of course. This is odd! Did she tear up two letters—where in heaven's name are the missing pieces of the other one?"

Burke held up his right hand as if taking the oath and avouched that he had personally examined every scrap.

"Go back and try again!" said Thatcher Colt, and Burke, rolling his eyes until only the whites could be seen, departed from the office. As Captain Laird and I stood beside the desk, the Commissioner leaned over the torn pieces of paper and said:

"Don't you see that this note is written with the household ink in the girl's apartment—this makes the other note—the blackmail one—even more curious. I wonder if I have sent Burke on a wild goose chase?"

Fruitless Search

In fact, he had, as the offended Burke will continue to tell his grandchildren. Indeed, the whole nation-wide quest for the missing Geraldine seemed to be fruitless, as day followed day without results. Seven times, during those busy days, Geraldine Foster was reported found, but all were frauds. Such disappointments are an inevitable part of all such girl-hunts, for no far-seeming clue can be ignored.

But Thatcher Colt, at times neglecting other important duties, stuck to the case. What clues there were seemed inadequate and confusing. There was, for example, what Thatcher Colt referred to as the "Clue of Ephraim Foster." This was unearthed in some of the letters which Geraldine had written home and which the Commissioner studied with great care. Among them, he found the reason why Geraldine had taken to telling her friends she had royal blood in her veins. She got the idea from letters written to her by one Ephraim Foster, of Willowhobby, Kansas. The Foster was tracing the family history of the Foster family, writing to her by the name of Ephraim Foster, and she had found and intended to write a book on the subject.

"We come from the groins of kings," wrote the old gentleman to Geraldine, in a letter which the girl had sent proudly home to her parents.

I greatly admired the precision and despatch with which Colt acted on that seemingly trivial clue. He called six detective sergeants into his office, read them the letter and showed them the open pages of a telephone book.

"Divide up the Fosters among yourselves," ordered Colt. "Go on them and find out how many received similar letters."

By five o'clock the next afternoon, we knew that none of the several hundred Fosters living in New York had received such a letter. Apparently the ancestor-enthusiast, Ephraim Foster, had written only to the girl who now could not be found. A set expression was in my chief's eyes as he dictated a wire to the Chief of Police of Willowhobby, Kansas, asking for information about Ephraim Foster.

I remember that I sent that telegram on the night of January 6. The reply that came the following morning greatly astonished us:

"Ephraim Foster had post-office box here last Summer. Understand not a man but a woman. Did not live in town but drove in from some other town to get her mail. Anything we can do?"

Chief of Police Deyre.

Keenly aroused by this unexpected development, Thatcher Colt wired him to follow any trace as far as possible. While he realized that this might have no relation to the disappearance of Geraldine, he was sufficiently peculiar to follow through. But before we had heard again from the West, there came a new development that drove all other matters temporarily from our minds.

This new development was the finding of the fragments of the second—which I have called the blackmail—note of Geraldine Foster. It was just at the noon hour of January 7, Betty Canfield called the office and talked to Thatcher Colt. Presently he turned from the telephone, his face glowing with excitement.

"Betty Canfield has found the missing pieces of that note. They were behind the desk drawer," he exclaimed. "Funny! I looked there, too. Get on the telephone, Tony, and take down the contents of the message in shorthand while she reads it to me."

Two seconds later, I was listening in and copying down the following:

"My dear Casanova—

There is nothing you can do about it. If I tell, your happiness will be destroyed. What is the small amount I need compared with your happiness? I think I am letting you off very easily. Particularly as I do not approve of your romance and cannot be secured by your threats. I will never show the white feather. You tell me it is right. Something tells me it is very wrong. Very wicked. Once in your sleep I heard you utter her name. I am getting married and I need the money. I must have four thousand dollars from you or I will tell about the house on Peddler's Road. Thank God I have—"

There, Betty told us, the note abruptly finished.

Instantly saying good-bye to her, with a promise that he would send for her later, Colt turned from the regulation to the inter-office telephone. To another division of that immense department which he loved to call the "Standing Army of the City of New York," he put a question:

"Hello—Brampton? Is there such a place in the five boroughs anywhere as Peddler's Road? What? All right, I'll hold on."

He turned and looked solemnly at me.

"That note sounds bad," he said.

"Who was Casanova?"

Then he spoke again into the phone and listened to the crisp voice, giving directions from the other end.

"Thanks," said Thatcher Colt finally, and turned to me as he replaced the receiver.

"Peddler's Road"

I knew what my chief would do. He would telephone to the Precinct Captain in the neighborhood wherever Peddler's Road might lie and give his instructions. The Precinct Captain would "turn on the light." The patrolman on the beat within ten or fifteen minutes would be near the patrol-box and observe the signal light flashing. He would telephone to the station-house and be told to find out what he could about the houses on Peddler's Road.

"Chief," I said, "I wish you would let me do that job. I'm all up on my work here."

Thatcher Colt smiled.

"All right," he said, "Peddler's Road is on Manhattan Island, although I confess I have never heard of it before. Brampton tells me it is a small lane, running across some under-tenement property behind Riverside Drive near the Dyckman Street ferry up on the hill there, near the Rockefeller property. I don't know that there is much chance of finding anything important, but you could hop up there right off and take a look around. Mind? The note says the 'house on Peddler's Road' and Brampton says it is just a block in length, so you won't have far to look. Report right back here—Captain Laird and I are having lunch to talk over the case."

AT THE GRAND
She wanted love, not jewels. Yet he persisted in bedecking her with glittering baubles while all she wanted was simple affection, a home—and happiness.

This is the theme of Radio Pictures' "White Shoulders," the compelling Rex Beach story which comes today to the Grand Theatre.

The story is the reverse of the accepted motion picture theme. Instead of marrying for money and position, as many chorus girls are reputed doing, this girl of the stage married for love.

And the man decorated her with jewels. The result was inevitable when another man entered the scene.

"White Shoulders," which was directed by Melville Brown, includes such noted players as Mary Astor, Jack Holt and Richardo Cortez, supported by Kitty Kelly and Sidney Toler.

AT THE CLIFTONA
Dorothy Mackall, will be seen here Wednesday next as the star of "Party Husband," the First National comedy-drama of modern marriage. She portrays a clever bride who insists on entering the business world and keeping her individuality. Her husband, played by James Rennie, is also convinced that the old marriage ideas are the bunk. Whether they are the bunk or not, is developed as the intensely engaging domestic drama proceeds to its logical climax. Humor, tenderness and humanity blend with the hard, glittering modernity of the story. Miss Mackall was never quite so intriguing. Clarence Bade directed.

HOME GROWN FEED CHEAPER FOR HENS

The abundant supply of home-grown grains affords the poultry raiser an opportunity to save money in the preparation of his laying rations. A laying mash, supplemented by grains and milk furnish the simplest rations through which satisfactory results may be obtained. Two or more grains may be kept in the feeders to provide variety and free choice for the birds. The birds should be given only milk as a drink to get them to consume sufficient protein. Alfalfa, soy beans, or clover hay may be put in racks and kept before the birds when in confinement. To keep up the vitality of the birds, which are kept in confinement, cod liver oil may be fed by sprinkling one-half pint of oil per one hundred birds, over the scratch grain in the hoppers every other day. Grain mixtures may be comprised of the following: whole or cracked corn or wheat, alone, or with three parts, corn, oats or barley, one part; wheat, one part, corn one part and oats or barley one part. A simple laying mash may be prepared as follows: 200 pounds of corn meal, 100 pounds ground wheat, 100 pounds ground oats, 100 pounds meat scrap and 5 pounds salt.

Relative prices on feed for poultry products would indicate profitable returns from careful management of the laying flock under present egg and poultry prices.

Exploring South America

DARKEST South America is now coming in for some of the glory of exploration. The successful quest of the source of the Orinoco by the Dickey expedition has done more to arouse world interest in South American exploration than any other single event.

Why is it that "Darkest Africa" has been getting all the publicity and attention for 60 years while South America with even more "impenetrable" jungles and more "lost" country went begging for explorers and popular interest? Africa's big game is probably the principal reason. Other reasons were that exploring Africa became a fad after the Stanley-Livingstone adventure and of late has become safe enough to be fashionable. Africa and Teddy Roosevelt used each other for publicity purposes.

Thousands of miles of territory never seen by white men beckon from South America to those who hear the call to the explorer: "Something lost behind the ranges, lost and waiting for you. Go!" It is the great exploring ground of today and tomorrow.

There are the Amazon headwaters 4,000 miles from the Atlantic and 1,000 miles from the Pacific. Doctor Dickey followed the Orinoco 1,750 miles into "Darkest South America." Tribes never before seen the white man. Strange beasts and vegetation and unknown mountains, valleys and rivers. It is a new order for the discovery boys.

Now that South American exploration has begun in earnest one is tempted to speculate on possibilities for colonization and development. Will the white man make as slow progress there as he has made in Africa?

Controlled Weather

SUMMER tourist traffic was driven to the automobile, bus and ship by the hot, dirty and drafty railroad coach. Not even the Pullman and parlor car are havens for the traveler in the heat of summer.

Air-conditioned cars are the railroads' bid for some of this lost hot-weather business. Leading railroad systems are experimenting with a new development in Pullman cars in which artificially tempered and filtered air is substituted for the open window. It is an appealing picture, one that should lure many seasoned travelers away from their motor cars when the journey is long.

Air conditioning is as certain of universal adaptation as television. Air-conditioned Pullman and stores are recent developments, while the air-conditioned home, office, hotel and factory are not far off.

It has not been many years since the central heating plant (now universal here) was a novelty and luxury afforded by few homes. It will not be many years before the home without conditioned air will be as obsolete as a home without central heat. And why should a modern home in modern America be only as comfortable as the weather?

Our descendants will pity us for our dependence on the open and closed window as much as we pity our ancestors for their dependence on the old oaken bucket.

Contract Confusion

FOOTBALL is not the only amateur game that has rules which need revising and codifying every year. There is that domestic pastime of contract bridge, needing endless supervision, regulation and codification by the recognized authorities.

Four hundred bridge teachers have been in convention in New York, bending their brows to the task of devising an "official" system of bidding for contract bridge. The annual conferences of football coaches and officials are not nearly so solemn, so strained, nor so arbitrary in their rulings as this session of the experts of the deck and deal.

Everybody who has sat in a game of contract bridge or watched the play from the sidelines will agree with the authorities that the game ought to be brought down to common sense. Where two or more players are learned in the rules, it is almost impossible to conduct an evening of progressive contrast without controversy because no two acknowledge the same rules and authorities.

Too many rules spoil the game. That is the trouble with contract bridge. One man's signal is another's confusion. As things stand a conference on rules must precede every game if the evening is not to be spent arguing about rules instead of playing cards.

Peace on earth among the bridge instructors and their warring systems.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

by ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT BY COWI, FRIED, INC. — DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Geraldine Foster, pretty young clerk in the office of Dr. Humphrey Maskell disappeared on Saturday. Three days later her roommate, Betty Canfield, notified Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt. Harry Armstrong, the missing girl's fiancé, had not heard from her since Friday. Dr. Maskell says he returned to his office Saturday afternoon to find Geraldine gone. At the Foster apartment, Colt learns from Betty that Geraldine had quarreled with the doctor. The Commissioner finds an old-fashioned key in the pocket of Geraldine's coat and part of a blackmail note, presumably in her handwriting, in the desk. Different ink than that in the apartment was used. It is learned that Betty quarreled with Geraldine, and that she was once engaged to Geraldine's brother, Bruce. Entering Dr. Maskell's home, Colt meets Maskell's chauffeur, muttering, "Get me to talk? Never. But Geraldine was good to me." The doctor says there was a strange woman waiting outside his door when he returned Saturday. After looking around his office, she rushed out crying it was too late. Colt finds a coat and purse which the doctor readily admits Geraldine wore the day she disappeared. Maskell claims he had reled with her because she had broken her engagement. Colt calls on Mrs. Morgan, Maskell's neighbor, who corroborates the doctor's statement that her daughter, Doris, had distributed gifts with him. Two women were seen leaving the doctor's office, carrying two bottles similar to that found in Maskell's office. Dr. Maskell leaves town.

CHAPTER X.

JUST THEN, Captain Henry came in, saluted, and announced that Sergeant Burke wanted to talk to the Commissioner. "Bring him in at once," Burke marched into the office, his hand in the detective's face was red and his eyes were rolling.

"I have the honor to report that I have been through all the bales and I have not found the missing pieces, Mr. Commissioner," he said lugubrously.

And you call yourself a detective, Burke?

To our surprise, Burke replied by laying a handful of green paper fragments before the Commissioner.

Scraps of Paper

"What's this, Burke? You just told me you couldn't find them." "I couldn't Sir," pleaded the detective. "I found these instead. They are pieces of a note written by the Foster girl — but they don't belong to the piece you showed me."

Hastily, Thatcher Colt fitted the pieces together and read the letter aloud:

"After what has happened, I can never marry you. This is the end of it. You could not love me and take the position you do. I love you—the you I knew before—but I shall never see you again."

For a moment, there was a complete silence in the Commissioner's office. At length it was broken by Captain Laird.

"Who is Harry?" he asked.

"Harry Armstrong—the boy she was to marry, of course. This is odd! Did she tear up two letters—where in heaven's name are the missing pieces of the other one?"

Burke held up his right hand as if taking the oath and avouched that he had personally examined every scrap.

"Go back and try again!" said Thatcher Colt, and Burke, rolling his eyes until only the whites could be seen, departed from the office. As Captain Laird and I stood before the desk, the Commissioner leaned over the torn pieces of paper and said:

"Don't you see that this note is written with the household ink in the girl's apartment—this makes the other note—the black-mail one—even more curious. I wonder if I have sent Burke on a wild goose chase?"

Fruitful Search
In fact, he had, as the offended Burke would continue to tell his grandchildren. Indeed, the whole nation-wide quest for the missing Geraldine seemed to be fruitless, as day followed day without results. Seven times, during those busy days, Geraldine Foster was reported found, but all were frauds. Such disappointments are an inevitable part of all such girl-hunts, for no far-seeming clue can be ignored.

But Thatcher Colt, at times neglecting other important duties, stuck to the case. What clues there were seemed inadequate and confusing. There was, for example, what Thatcher Colt referred to as the "Clue of Ephraim Foster." This was unearthed in some of the letters which Geraldine had written home and which the Commissioner studied with great care. Among them, he found the reason why Geraldine had taken to telling her friends she had royal blood in her veins.

She got the idea from letters written to her by one Ephraim Foster, of Willoughby, Kansas. This is the real history of the genealogical writing to which the name tended. He could find and inject a note to write a book on the subject.

"We come from the groins of kings," wrote the old gentleman to Geraldine, in a letter which the girl had sent proudly home to her parents.

I greatly admired the precision and despatch with which Colt acted on that seemingly trivial clue. He called six detective sergeants into his office, read them the letter and showed them the open pages of a telephone book.

"Divide up the Fosters among yourselves," ordered Colt. "Call on them and find out how many received similar letters."

By five o'clock the next afternoon, we knew that none of the several hundred Fosters living in New York had received such a letter. Apparently the ancestor-enthusiast, Ephraim Foster, had written only to the girl who now could not be found. A set expression was in my chief's eyes as he dictated a wire to the Chief of Police of Willoughby, Kansas, asking for information about Ephraim Foster.

I remember that I sent that telegram on the night of January 6. The reply that came the following morning greatly astonished us:

"Ephraim Foster had post-office box here last Summer. Understand not a man but a woman. Did not live in town but drove in from some other town to get her mail. Anything we can do?"

Chief of Police Dewey. Keenly aroused by this unexpected development, Thatcher Colt wired him to follow any trace as far as possible. While he realized that this might have no relation to the disappearance, it looked sufficiently peculiar to follow through.

But before we had heard again from the West, there came a new development that drove all other matters temporarily from our minds.

This new development was the finding of the fragments of the second—which I have called the blackmail—note of Geraldine Foster. It was just at the noon hour of January 7, Betty Canfield called the office and talked to Thatcher Colt. Presently he turned from the telephone, his face glowing with excitement.

"Betty Canfield has found the missing pieces of that note. They were behind the desk drawer," he exclaimed. "Funny—I looked there, too. Get on the telephone extension, Tony, and take down the contents of the message in shorthand while she reads it to me."

Two seconds later, I was listening in and copying down the following:

"My dear Casanova:—There is nothing you can do about it. If I tell your happiness will be destroyed. What is the small amount I need compared with your happiness? I think I am letting you off very easily. Particularly as I do not approve of your romance and cannot be served by your threats. I will never show the white feather. You tell me it is right. Something tells me it is very wrong. Very wicked. Once in your sleep I heard you utter her name. I am getting married and I need the money. I must have four thousand dollars from you or I will tell about the house on Peddler's Road. Thank God I have—"

There, Betty told us, the note abruptly finished. Instantly saying good-bye to her, with a promise that he would send for her later, Colt turned from the regulation to the inter-office telephone. To another division of that immense department which he loved to call the "Standing Army of the City of New York," he put a question:

"Hello—Brampton? Is there such a place in the five boroughs anywhere as Peddler's Road? What? All right, I'll hold on."

He turned and looked solemnly at "That note sounds bad," he said.

"Who was Casanova?" Then he spoke again into the phone and listened to the crisp voice, giving directions from the other end.

"Thanks," said Thatcher Colt finally, and turned to me as he replaced the receiver.

Peddler's Road

I knew what my chief would do. He would telephone to the Precinct Captain in the neighborhood wherever Peddler's Road might lie and give his instructions. The Precinct Captain would "turn on the light. The patrolman on the summer beat within ten or fifteen minutes would be near the patrol-box and observe the signal light flashing. He would telephone to the station house and be told to find out what he could about the houses on Peddler's Road."

"Chief," I said, "I wish you would let me do that job. I'm all up on my work here."

Thatcher Colt smiled. "All right," he said, "Peddler's Road is on Manhattan Island, although I confess I have never heard of it before. Brampton tells me it is a small lane, running across some undeveloped property behind Riverside Drive near the Dyckman Street ferry up on the hill there, near the Rockefeller property. I don't know that there is much chance of finding anything important, but you could hop up there right off and take a look around. Mind? This note says the house on Peddler's Road" and Brampton's name it is just a block in length, so you won't have far to look. Report right back here—Captain Laird and I are having lunch to talk over the case."

AT THE GRAND

She wanted love, not jewels. Yet he persisted in bedecking her with glittering baubles while all she wanted was simple affection, a home—and happiness.

This is the theme of Radio Pictures' "White Shoulders," the compelling Rex Beach story which comes today to the Grand Theatre. The story is the reverse of the accepted motion picture theme. Instead of marrying for money and position, as many chorus girls are reputed doing, this girl of the stage married for love.

And the man decorated her with jewels. The result was inevitable when another man entered the scene.

"White Shoulders," which was directed by Melville Brown, includes such noted players as Mary Astor, Jack Holt and Richardo Cortez, supported by Kitty Kelly and Sidney Toler.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Dorothy Mackaill will be seen here Wednesday next as the star of "Party Husband," the First National comedy-drama of modern marriage. She portrays a clever bride who insists on entering the business world and keeping her individuality. Her husband, played by James Rennie, is also convinced that the old marriage ideas are the bunk. Whether they are the bunk or not, is developed as the intensely engaging domestic drama proceeds to its logical climax. Humor, tenderness and humanity blend with the hard, glittering modernity of the story. Miss Mackaill was never quite so intriguing. Clarence Bader directed.

HOME GROWN FEED CHEAPER FOR HENS

The abundant supply of home-grown grains affords the poultry raiser an opportunity to save money in the preparation of his laying rations. A laying mash supplemented by grains and milk furnish the simplest rations through which satisfactory results may be obtained. Two or more grains may be kept in the feeders to provide variety and free choice for the birds. The birds should be given only milk as a drink to get them to consume sufficient protein. Alfalfa, Soy beans, or clover hay may be put in racks and kept before the birds when in confinement. To keep up the vitality of the birds, which are kept in confinement, cod liver oil may be fed by sprinkling one-half pint of oil per one hundred birds, over the scratch grain in the hoppers every other day. Grain mixtures may be comprised of the following: whole or cracked corn or wheat alone; wheat three parts; corn, oats or barley, one part; wheat one part; corn one part and oats or barley one part. A simple laying mash may be prepared as follows: 200 pounds of corn meal; 100 pounds ground wheat; 100 pounds ground oats; 100 pounds meat scrap and 5 pounds salt.

Relative prices on feed for poultry products would indicate profitable returns from careful management of the laying flock under present egg and poultry prices.

Aristocrats never produce culture. They merely buy it from talented commoners who produce it.

Legion Echoes

Today there's some hot information on the race for commander. It comes right out from under the general's table, as the boys used to say in the army. Wise legion leaders say it lies between Henry Stephens and Ray Murphy. Both of them are lawyers. Stephens is the youngest candidate in the field.

BOYS PLAY BALL

The boys of the eighth grade have organized baseball teams and are playing games on Tuesday and Friday.

Tuesday games were won by John Jenkins' team from Cecil Andrews' team, 10 to 2, and Henry Helwagen's team defeated John McGinnis' team 7-6. George lies umpired the games and Mr. Lee was over-seer.

Aimee's Gorgeous "Pharaoh"

Handing all of you plebeians out in front a frigid stare, David L. Hutton, Aimee Semple McPherson's new and third husband, is shown in gorgeous array, waited on hand and foot, in his role as Pharaoh in a sacred opera presented by the Los Angeles evangelist to her followers of Angelus Temple. Aimee's "Iron Man" looks ferocious enough here to carry out his threat of "socking" anyone who criticizes the evangelist.

Miss Walling Is Leader In Field Of School Work

Miss Frances Walling, daughter of Mrs. Mabel Walling, 161 W. Mound-st., is engaged in a very interesting work in Wheeling, W. Va., the value of which is highly appreciated by educators and prominent citizens of that city and state.

In an article in a recent edition of the Wheeling Daily Register, Miss Walling is highly complimented for her work and its results. She is principal of the Wheeling Country Day school which she helped organize three years ago. The Country Day school is composed at the present time of two grades of students, a third grade group and an upper grade in which the students are given work equivalent to that of the freshman year of high school.

Those interested in the work in Wheeling emphasize that pupils completing work at the school are to receive the recognition given to those entered in any accredited high school of the state, if their work is recommended by the principal as satisfactory.

The school has received the high recommendation of Dan H. Perdue, state supervisor of high schools who said: "The work of pupils of the country day school will be judged individually and as long as work continues at the present standard, the division of high schools of the state department of education will accept such units as are similar to those offered by accredited high schools. The work of the country day school has been and in all probability will be improved even more within the next year."

Interest in education. We believe that in such an environment as a country day school offers, the child is given the best opportunity to become interested in those things which will fit him to live a full, happy and useful life. We believe that this kind of college preparation makes better college students, for the adjustment is not so difficult.

"The work we have been doing the past two years is only a beginning and beginnings are usually on a small scale. Growth is slow. We have before us, however, the vision of a permanent country day school, located perhaps on one of the beautiful hills of this vicinity . . . with equipment adequate to meet the needs of present-day education, and in an environment conducive to industry and happiness.

"There is no other country day school as yet in West Virginia. There are not many in the entire United States. The pioneer schools, however, are proving that they have won their permanent place in the educational system. Many boarding schools are moving to the country and strengthening their day schools.

"To those who are interested, Wheeling seems an ideal place for the establishment of such a school. The development of a good school is an inestimable asset to any community."
